Something About Summer

Early Morning Software announced in May that their President and CEO Donna Steveson had been featured in Minority Business Entrepreneur's (MBE) 30th Anniversary issue. The magazine focused the issue around women who are taking the business world by storm, touching on their business inspirations and growth in the industry. In the article, Stevenson also shares the idea behind PRISM, and the impact the product has made over 20 years later.

"They had no mechanisms in place prior to PRISM showing if they had been paid," Stevenson says. "With proactive alerts, the customer has a 360-degree view. It is a product that can touch and have an impact on our country and on small and minority businesses".

Stevenson has also been nominated for MBE magazines's WBEs Who Rock Awards. According to the magazine, these awards were created to recognize women business owners who exemplify passion, courage and leadership in the pursuit of their business success. The winners will be announced at the magazine's 30th Anniversary Launch Reception during the 2014 Women's Business Enterprise National Council Conference in Philadelphia, PA.
